

Leader says track for speedway club is 'paramount' PLEDGE TO BRING HEATHENS HOME

Report by Luke Bartlett

THE LEADER of Dudley Council has pledged to do everything he can to find famous Black Country speedway club Cradley Heathens a permanent home in the borough.

Councillor Patrick Harley says he has been in talks with the club's bosses in efforts to find the team their own permanent track where they can have race meetings.

The team have been homeless for more than 20 years, since leaving their base at Dudley Wood, and have been sharing grounds with clubs in Wolverhampton, Birmingham and Stoke in recent years.

But now Councillor Harley has said it is 'paramount' that the local authority take action to find them the Heathens somewhere to call their home – following another failed attempt just weeks ago.

Councillor Harley said: "There are two groups – the supporters group and the organisation that is Cradley speedway."

"I have met with both of them trying to find some way forward to try and get them a home back in the borough."

"I thought we had found a home a few weeks ago but unfortunately after having officers meet with the land owners, they do have a use for that land."

Search

"The search goes on to try and help the Cradley Heathens. I do realise that it is absolutely paramount to try and find them somewhere in the borough."

In their heyday, Cradley Heathens won 13 trophies in 17 years and produced seven world champions. Cradley Heathens was founded in Dudley in 1947 and competed at the top level of British speedway until 1995 when the team closed.

But the team was revived in 2010 as Dudley Heathens and competed in the National League. In 2013 the club's name changed back to Cradley Heathens.

The club, which now track shares with Wolverhampton at Monmore Green, withdrew from the National League at the end of last season and currently races only in National Trophy fixtures, sharing its riders with other clubs.

The Motor Market Cradley Heathens' next fixture is 'home' at Wolverhampton against Mildenhall Fen Tigers on Tuesday, September 11.

"The only way we could return to full league racing is by finally securing a site of our own," said club director Nigel Pearson at the start of the trophy campaign.

The comments from Councillor Harley came as part of a live Q&A session the council boss was hosting on Facebook, where he also answered questions on a range of issues, from homelessness in the borough and to illegal traveller camps.

AMY READY TO KEEP DANCING

Dudley-based dancer Amy Dowden is looking forward to taking part in the new series of Strictly Come Dancing, which launches on BBC TV on Saturday evening. The Welsh ballroom and Latin star, pictured with her professional competition partner and fiancé Ben Jones, will learn on Saturday's show which celebrity she will be partnering in the quest for the famous Strictly champions' glitterball. Last year she danced with comedian Brian Conley. Amy and Ben run the Art in Motion Dance Academy in Dudley.

TERROR

Five suspects are arrested after raids

TWO men from Birmingham were among five people arrested yesterday (Wednesday) on suspicion of membership of a banned far-right group, under anti-terrorism legislation.

Three men, a woman and a 17-year-old boy were detained on suspicion of terrorism offences following a series of raids across the country.

They are suspected of being members of banned group National Action contrary to section 11 of the Terrorism Act.

All five were being held at a police station in the West Midlands.

INTERNET

Region the first to test 5G technology

THE West Midlands has won the race to become the UK's first 5G mobile internet test bed.

According to the Digital Minister Margot James, who is also MP for Stourbridge: "5G has the potential to dramatically transform the way we go about our daily lives."

The region beat competition from 18 other areas to land the £50 million deal, which will see it get super-fast connectivity.

TRAFFIC

Commuters face a year of delays

PARADISE Circus in Birmingham is shut to traffic until next summer as part of the latest phase of Midland Metro works, leaving commuters facing diversions to get around the city.

The main road is closed in both directions, potentially causing gridlock at busy times and it promises to be anything but paradise for drivers.

Concern for pupils over house plan

AN APPLICATION to turn a detached house in Halesowen into a residential home for youngsters with emotional and learning difficulties has led to fears for pupils at a nearby school.

The proposal to convert the property on Springfield Road has also raised concerns about parking and traffic problems.

The application to Dudley Council would turn the five-bedroom house into a residential unit for three youngsters aged between eight and 18.

These would be young people 'experiencing developmental difficulties and problematic early life experiences including attachment disorder, emotional behaviours and moderate to low learning difficulties', according to a report.

Influence

The planning report, which is going before councillors, states that because the site is adjacent to Olive Hill Primary School residents fear young children could be affected by the actions or influence of young people with behavioural problems.

Planning officers have recommended that councillors approve the change of use and members of Dudley's development control committee will meet on September 11 to decide if the application is approved.

Demolition likely at Dudley Hippodrome

DUDLEY College it to table a bid to take over the site of local landmark the Dudley Hippodrome – resulting in the former variety theatre on Castle Hill being bulldozed.

Education bosses have had their sights on the land for months and are now developing firm plans to use the site for the continued expansion of the college.

A bid for the site is expected to be lodged this month and, if successful, would end hopes of rescuing the venue and reviving it as a theatre.

Dudley Council invited companies to submit 'expressions of interest' in the former bingo hall in July following the collapse of a community-led bid to re-open the 1930s-built venue as a theatre. In its heyday it hosted such stars at Laurel and Hardy, George Formby, Ken Dodd and Bruce Forsyth.

A college spokesman said: "The college is interested in developing the facility and with a number of partners we are working on a proposal for consideration."

Developing

The college has acknowledged it had an interest in the site but it is the first time it has publicly stated its intentions for developing it. It is understood the college would have no interest it retaining the Castle Hill building.

Education bosses are keen to continue the rapid growth of the college, which has become one of the most respected post-16 learning centres in the region under the leadership of principal Lowell Williams.

Hopes the Hippodrome could be saved were all-but dashed last year by the new Conservative council leadership. Council leader Patrick Harley said he wanted to draw a line under the Hippodrome issue 'once and for all'.

The building stands derelict and has not been used since 2009. Thousands had signed a petition to save the building but the presence of dangerous asbestos added to the costs.

More than 40,000 call for justice for Ryan

A PETITION to spark a Parliamentary debate on a ground-breaking legal fight to get justice for a young knife victim has reached the 40,000 mark.

The news came as more than 200 bikers took part in a fund-raising ride-out in memory of Ryan Passey, from Stourbridge, who died following a stabbing at a nightclub in the town in August last year.

The event raised £1,800 for his family's fighting fund and a raffle is expected to boost the total to more than £2,000.

It was organised by John Hill, a close friend of Ryan's father and licensee of The Widders pub, in Bar-rack Lane, Halesowen, where the ride-out to Bridgnorth started from and ended.

He said: "We've raised more than £30,000 over five years for different charities here at the pub but this is the most important cause so far."

Ryan's father Adrian Passey, who attended the ride-out with other family members, said: "I've been overwhelmed by the turn-out and the support we've been getting. This was an amazing day."

In February, Kobe Murray was found not guilty of the murder and manslaughter of 24-year-old amateur footballer Ryan following a two-week trial at Birmingham Crown Court. He admitted stabbing Ryan but said it happened accidentally as he was pushing him away. He also said the knife had belonged to a friend.

West Midlands Police is reviewing the case, with officers looking for new evidence. Stourbridge MP Mar-got James has written to the Government's Attorney General over the case.

The victim's family and friends

are calling for a right to appeal jury verdicts. Their campaign, called Justice For Ryan, is seeking a change in the law to allow victims and their families to challenge a jury's acquittal decision.

If their petition reaches 100,000 signatures, their cause will be debated in Parliament.

Family friend Jason Connon said

25,000 people had so far signed the online petition while another 15,000 names had been added to paper petitions at events including as Sunday's ride-out.

Around £10,000 has been raised towards the fighting fund to cover legal costs. Mr Connon said: "It's going to be a long and difficult fight but we're not going to give up."

Also at the ride-out were Ryan's mother Gill, her husband Phil Taylor, and Adrian's partner Debbie.

The next fundraiser will be a memorial football match between Wolves All-Stars and a 'Justice for Ryan' team on September 30 at Stourbridge FC, preceded by a march highlighting the rise in knife crime.

Planners to visit site proposed for cemetery

A HUGE new cemetery will be built opposite Rowley Regis Crematorium to provide much-needed new burial space, under plans set to go before councillors.

Planning officials are due to visit a vast site backing onto homes on Powke Lane, where council bosses want the new cemetery to be created.

The land, next to Powke Lane Industrial Estate, has been identified to provide burial space and is just a short distance from the crematorium, which recently underwent a £1.3 million re-vamp. A new car park would also be created to serve the new cemetery.

Sandwell Council chiefs have been desperately searching for land to create burial space.

Planning committee members are due to visit the site this week and a decision on whether to give it the go-ahead is expected in early October.

However, the land, which is currently open green space, is popular with dog-walkers and its possible loss has sparked anger.

CCTV

Documents with the application said: "The current application is to change the use of part of Powke Lane open space to a cemetery and will include site remediation works – widening of the existing access of Powke Lane, erection of an office building with toilets and an operation yard, creation of a car park and associated works including CCTV, lighting and landscaping."

Rowley Regis councillor Susan Eaves supports the plan. "We need a new cemetery. We will run out of space in a few years," she said. "I know there are a lot of people who are up in arms about it but we need to have it somewhere."

Rowley Regis Crematorium, which is one of the main cemeteries serving the Sandwell and Dudley area, was modernised as part of a major facelift back in 2016.

Works included upgrading the chapel and the creation of a new reception area and car park.

Ozzy rocks back to Brum on final tour

ROCK legend Ozzy Osbourne has announced a hometown show as part of his final world tour.

The former Black Sabbath frontman, 69, will play six shows in the UK including his home city of Birmingham – at the Genting Arena on February 9 – before finishing with a show at London's O2 Arena on February 11.

Osbourne said: "I'm looking at this final tour as being a huge celebration for my fans and anyone who has enjoyed my music over the past five decades."

Support is from Judas Priest.

Police step up church patrols after drug reports

POLICE have launched 'high profile' patrols following an increase in reports of anti-social behaviour and drug-taking in the grounds of Halesowen's parish church.

West Midlands Police has stepped up its presence at St John the Baptist Church, in High Street, following a spate of incidents.

Council chiefs say the issues have been part of a 'long running' problem for the church.

Hilary Bills, deputy mayor and ward councillor for Halesowen North, said: "It is the cemetery. It has been a long running issue. We have people that have taken to sitting on benches outside of the church and having a drink."

Police have issued a warning that anyone found engaging in anti-social behaviour or drug-taking on the site will be 'dealt with accordingly'.

A police spokesperson said: "High profile police patrols are currently under way at St John the Baptist Church following increasing anti-social behaviour and drug use within the grounds."

Rev Canon Dominic Melville, vicar at St John's, said: "I think the initiative, this increase in police, is about saying we are taking an interest in what happens in this area. It is a space that belongs to this community and it needs to be safe for this community."

Music night to focus on scandal

A DUDLEY writer is to host a night of comedy, music and poetry with a serious message.

Greg Stokes will be highlighting the contaminated blood scandal in the NHS during the event at The Lamp Tavern, High Street, on Friday, September 21, from 8pm. Admission £3 on the door.

The evening with Greg Stokes and Friends will take place three days before the public inquiry begins into the scandal which saw thousands of people with haemophilia and associated conditions given transfusions of contaminated blood clotting factor. Many have since developed and died from HIV and hepatitis C. There have been claims of a cover up over how much doctors knew about the dangers.

Homes approved

HOMES may be built on land in Dudley under plans given a green light by planners. Dudley Council approved a scheme, subject to conditions, to build four homes between Regent House and Greystone Passage.

Just days before your chance to vote

THERE are just days to go until voting begins in the Express & Star's Baby of the Year competition.

More than 750 little ones were photographed by snapper Andrea Powell at intu Merry Hill and the Mander Centre in Wolverhampton.

Families were invited to choose the perfect picture to feature in a 24-page supplement, in next Wednesday's Express & Star (September 12), when people will get their chance to vote for their favourites.

Parents, grandparents, uncles and aunties will have the opportunity to vote for their winner by collecting tokens printed in our sister daily, the Express & Star. Tokens will be available to cut out of the newspaper from then until Saturday, October 13.

Some days will also feature bumper bonus tokens, with quadruple token editions, and even 10 available to collect on other days.

There are some serious prizes on offer across four age categories, and a bonus for the overall winner. There will be a £500 prize for the winner in each of the following categories – 0-9 months, 10-18 months, 19-35 months, and 3-5 years – and a £250 bonus for the overall winner. It is the first year the Express & Star has run the competition.

Once you've picked, cut out the vote tokens and complete a Voting Tokens Return Form. Tokens can be sent in batches or together in one envelope after the last one has been printed, but a form must be included each time.

The deadline for returning tokens is October 19. Find out more by visiting the website <https://www.baby.expressandstar.com>

TV star Ross goes on raids with armed police

ROSS Kemp's new documentary following armed West Midlands Police officers will be on TV screens tonight (Thursday).

Ross Kemp and the Armed Police will take viewers behind the scenes with the region's firearms officers in footage filmed across the Black Country and Birmingham earlier this year.

Former EastEnders actor Kemp was spotted several times in the region during filming – including at McDonald's restaurants in Bentley Bridge, Wolverhampton and Stourbridge. He also posed for photos with Walsall and Wolverhampton Force Response officers.

The show, which examines how armed police are dealing with the rise in gun crime in the region, will premier on ITV at 9pm on September 6 and then will be available on catch up.

In the documentary, Kemp dons a bullet-proof vest, accompanies the police on house raids and embeds himself with the team, while he also meets gun smugglers who claim the police have lost control of illegal arms importation.

Gang

Kemp also meets the families of victims of gun violence, including the mother of a 14-year-old who was gunned down last year in a gang-related incident, and visits the National Ballistics Intelligence Service where seized guns are stored.

The actor turned documentary maker accompanied the West Midlands Police Operational Support Unit and also worked with the British Transport Police, Northumberland Police and South Yorkshire Police in the making of the documentary.

Kemp said on Twitter: "Coming to ITV on Thursday 6th September at 9pm, my new documentary, Ross Kemp and The Armed Police."

"A year in the making, hope you can watch." Earlier in the year Kemp hit out at reports that claimed he'd found Birmingham more terrifying than Afghanistan, describing the articles as 'fake news'.

The 54-year-old said "Saying I wore the same body armour working with armed police in Birmingham as I did in Afghanistan has been turned into headlines saying it was more terrifying and shocking filming in Birmingham than in Afghanistan?! This is fake news and, I think, insulting to those who served in Afghanistan."

The actor turned investigative journalist received rave reviews for his 2004 documentary series Ross Kemp on Gangs that explored modern gang culture in the UK.

He followed this up with a number of popular series that included Ross Kemp in Afghanistan and Ross Kemp: Extreme World.

Figures released by the Home Office show the number of police firearms operations across the West Midlands has increased more in just a single year than in any other region in the country.

Armed police were called to 3,312 incidents in 2017/18 – up 53 per cent from the year before when there were 2,167.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Hub is one-stop shop for carers

A NEW one-stop shop for carers has opened in Dudley. Run by Dudley Council, Dudley Carers Hub provides support, advice and information to carers living in the borough.

It has been set up to improve the lives of local carers who provide practical, personal or emotional support to a family member or friend due to their illness, disability, frailty or addiction.

It aims to ensure they receive all of the practical help, advice and support that they need to ease their caring responsibilities.

Support on offer includes financial and legal advice, accessing financial help, emotional and wellbeing support, respite services, support planning, social groups, as well as specialist support for young carers and parent carers.

People can visit the hub in Wellington Road, open Monday to Friday, 9am to 5pm, or call them on 01384 818723, email carers.network@dudley.gov.uk or visit www.dudley.gov.uk/carers

Leader refutes Coseley criticism

CLAIMS that Coseley is being used as a 'dumping ground' have been dismissed by a council boss.

Dudley Council leader Patrick Harley rejected comments made by residents over about plans for a rehab hostel and a council-run travellers' site. Charity Expectations UK have submitted proposals to build a 65-bed-room hostel for men on Bayer Street. Police have objected to the plan.

Addressing claims that Coseley was a 'dumping ground', Councillor Harley said: "That is absolute rubbish. That is not true in any way at all."

Delay warning as lights installed

MOTORISTS are being warned to face delays as temporary traffic lights are installed on a Tipton road.

The 24-hour signals were being installed in Locarno Road this week while Cadent Gas carry out work in the area. The lights are due to be removed by September 20.

Zoo 'farm barn' home to gecko hatchlings

DUDLEY Zoo has welcomed three new additions to its farm barn exhibit.

Three gecko hatchlings born in the zoo's reptile house have now taken up residence. Two tiny Standing's day geckos born on August 7 and 10 and a Tokay gecko that hatched on May 7 have moved to a special hatchling area. The farm barn opened in August 2017 as part of a £295,000 revamp.

4 Praise for children's service from watchdog

DUDLEY Council's children's services have been praised for its progress by Government watchdogs despite warnings that social workers are struggling with workloads.

Ofsted's findings have been welcomed by the council's cabinet member with responsibility for children who said it showed the authority was improving services for vulnerable youngsters and young people.

Responding to a letter reporting on Ofsted's latest monitoring visit, Cllr Angus Lees, said: "We are pleased with the findings of the monitoring visit, which demonstrate we are continuing to move in the right direction to transform services.

"I'm particularly pleased it makes reference to the good work of our social workers and staff, who work tirelessly to help the children in our borough who need it the most."

Inspectors also observed social work practice and praised leaders and senior managers, saying "clear strategic plans" were in place to further improve services in Dudley.

Inspectors reported they "did not see any children or young people at risk of significant harm" during their visit.

But the inspectors also found that high caseloads were affecting its ability to recruit and retain staff.

A full inspection will take place later this year.

Beans bonanza

DUDLEY Zoo chimps have got a treat thanks to gardeners Laura Hamilton and her mother Pat. They produced a bumper crop of runner beans on their Northfield allotment and donated their surplus for the primates.

Help us make streets safer, says police chief

DUDLEY'S new police chief has vowed to get out on the beat and not have her feet stuck under a desk as she takes on her latest challenge.

Chief Superintendent Sally Bournier has taken charge of Dudley as she marks 28 years of service with West Midlands Police.

Her appointment coincides with the results of a survey by The Chronicle's sister newspaper with the Express & Star's crime survey revealing that more than half of readers do not feel safe and two thirds never see police on patrol in their area. Around 10,000 people responded to the survey in just two weeks.

Ch Supt Bournier said she doesn't shy away from this, saying: "Our most important relationship of all is our relationship with the people."

She said of the survey: "It makes me sad if that is how people feel with police because that neighbourhood relationship is almost the front door into the entirety of what we do within policing.

Challenges

"In terms of presence, I would say we are significantly smaller than we were. Every force is significantly smaller, therefore we do the maths that means there are fewer officers and PCSOs out on the ground.

"One of the biggest challenges we face at the moment is how we ensure that we deliver on the here-and-now imperative to deal with citizens' needs while at the same time working with our neighbourhood teams and with our wider partnership and prevent that harm happening in the first instance to stem the relentless demand coming in.

"Our relationship with partners around prevention and intervention is crucial. The police are the public and the public are the police.

"We cannot do what we do without the public being our eyes and ears which is why our neighbourhood teams are so crucial, they are the face and voice on the ground with local people."

Dudley's new police boss Chief Superintendent Sally Bournier has 28 years experience as an officer

She continued: "As commander of the borough, one of the things I am going to regularly do is get out and about, not having my feet under the desk but actually getting out on the beat with colleagues to understand the issues they are grappling with and listening to local people." Prior to this role, she led the region's force contact centre which dealt with between 6,000 and 7,000 calls a day.

She became a chief superintendent in 2011, making her one of the most experienced in the West Midlands, and has previously worked in Wolver-hampton as well as being a commander in Solihull.

She added: "We have to find better ways to work with the public and our partners to prioritise the two things that are fundamental to what we do - focusing on offenders and actually protecting the most vulnerable people from harm.

"We are one big team at the end of the day and we are driven to help make our communities and the lives of our citizens better.

"We cannot do that on our own."

NEWS IN BRIEF

RAF parade to attract a crowd

CROWDS are expected for an annual veterans' parade next weekend as the Royal Air Force marks its centenary.

The Dudley branch of the Royal Air Forces Association will host the Battle of Britain memorial parade and service on Sunday, September 16.

The parade will be made up of up of veterans, Royal Air Force cadet squadrons and serving personnel stationed at RAF Cosford. It will be followed by a service at Dudley Parish Church in Vicar Street.

The public are invited to join the service and watch the march through the town centre. The event, attended by the mayor, starts at 11.30am.

touching hearts, changing lives

Rise in number of children exploited by drug gangs

'I'd urge parents to know where their children are, engage with them and look out for new items they may bring home such as phones, clothes or money.'

A warning to families from a Black Country police sergeant as a new wave of child exploitation is emerging across the West Midlands. Children as young as 12 are being groomed to work as drug mules by dealers in almost 100 gang operations in the West Midlands.

Two Black Country stores avoid the axe

HOMEbase has been given the green light to press ahead with a wave of store closures that will see 42 DIY outlets shut, affecting 1,500 jobs. But the Black Country escapes the axe.

While Solihull and Droitwich will lose their branches in the latest round of closures, the stores in Wolverhampton and Oldbury have been spared, as have branches in Cannock, Kidderminster, Telford and Birmingham.

The retailer is closing the stores via a Company Voluntary Arrangement (CVA), a controversial insolvency procedure used by struggling firms.

More than 95 per cent of landlords to the struggling chain voted to approve the proposal at a meeting on Friday, staving off the immediate threat of administration.

A total of 16 Homebase stores have been shut this year and the business has also axed 303 jobs at its head office in Milton Keynes.

Dudley-based Sergeant Cliff Tomkinson says he is aware of some children who have been targeted by drug gangs as part of criminal activity known as County Lines.

In the West Midlands there are an estimated 90 of the operations, which involve children carrying out street deals on behalf of drug gangs looking to expand networks across the region.

The youths are often left to operate from a stranger's house taken over by the gang – a practice known as cuckooing. The use of juveniles, Sgt Tomkinson says, is to evade police attention.

Trafficking

The warning comes as figures published last week show the number of children referred for human trafficking and slavery has almost doubled across the Black Country and Staffordshire. They show child referrals for the first six months of this year by Wolverhampton council totalled 18. Sandwell Council referred 17, Walsall 12, Staffordshire six and Dudley two. Sgt Tomkinson said: "It's distressing to think this is taking place. The children are chosen because they are less likely to be identified and the drug dealer cannot afford to be caught."

He added: "We need to look out for our young people, ensure they are safe and do not fall into the such traps."

Tyler grapples with video success

Dudley-born wrestler Tyler Bate as he appears in video game WWE 2K19

A RISING star wrestler from Dudley has been added to the World Wrestling Entertainment's (WWE) latest edition of their popular video game.

Netherton 21-year-old Tyler Bate has been recreated in digital form for WWE 2K19, the latest instalment in the annual video game series by the wrestling organisation.

As one half of tag team 'Moustache Mountain', regulars in the WWE's UK brand NXT, Bate has been added to the game in advance of its upcoming release, alongside Chelmsley Wood's Pete Dunne.

Bate said: "In such a short time in WWE I have experienced so many incredible moments, becoming the first ever WWE United Kingdom Champion, NXT Tag Team Champion and now I can add being featured in WWE 2K19 to that list."

"There's a lot of dream matches to be made, and I'm excited for the fans to see who they put me up against."

The announcement was made at this year's Insomnia Gaming Festival held at the NEC in Birmingham on August 25 and 26. Bate and Dunne made an appearance at the event where it was announced they would be part of this year's game.

The Twitter account for the game said: "We're happy to announce that NXT UK Superstars Pete Dunne and Tyler Bate will be part of the official roster for the very first time in this year's game!" The game is released on October 5.

Wood pallets needed for giant bonfire

PEOPLE are being urged to donate their unwanted pallets to help build a huge bonfire at Himley Park, which will be the centre of the borough's fireworks spectacular on November 3.

Bosses at Dudley Council are appealing for help from local companies who can donate unbroken wooden pallets to build the giant bonfire.

The 'hero' themed bonfire and fireworks spectacular is one of the biggest in the region and a 20 per cent discount is available to people who book online in advance.

Councillor Ian Kettle, cabinet member for planning and economic development, said: "The fireworks and bonfire display at Himley is the largest council-run display in the country. Every year the event is tremendously supported by local companies donating huge numbers of pallets."

Pallets cannot be collected but will be accepted at Himley Hall from Monday. Companies that are able to deliver should call (01384) 817834.

Online, standard adult £10, standard child and senior citizen £5.50, family (two adults, two children) £24.

For the first time the event will have a premium viewing area on the South Lawns. These premium tickets will be limited and only available online. Full details can be found at www.himleyhallandpark.co.uk/bonfire or Facebook @HimleyHall

IN MY VIEW

with Mark Andrews

Integrity of MPs in VAT rates call goes pop!

ALARMED by rising obesity levels, MPs have called for higher VAT rates for sugary and salty foods. Oh and banning Tony the Tiger from advertising Frosties.

Of course, disguising tax rises as a healthy-living campaign is the oldest trick in the politician's repertoire, although I really can't see it working. After all, if money were a factor, people would eat in moderation to keep their bills down, wouldn't they?

Meanwhile, according to the House of Commons catering service, MPs and their officials got through nearly 19,000 cans of full-sugar Coca Cola in the six months up until April this year. Which is interesting, because according to Public Health England, just a single can of full-sugar Coca Cola is enough to send you over your daily sugar allowance.

The honourable members also munched their way through 6,000 packets of crisps, 5,000 Twix packs and 2,400 Victoria sponges, not to mention 15,000 cartons of Ribena. As ever, good to them leading by example.

AT THE same time, the Government has also announced that children under the age of 18 are to be banned from buying energy drinks.

What is wrong with kids today? When I was 17, it was all about my friends and I trying to sneak a pint in the backroom of the local pub, not knocking back cans of pop that give you insomnia.

Meanwhile, experts are attributing a 60 per cent fall in the number of Black Country teenagers getting pregnant to the fact that today's youngsters do their, ahem, socialising online these days, rather than in person. Of course, a fall in teenage pregnancies is a good thing, but it does again make one wonder about the youth of today.

Anyway, back to the energy drink ban: what would be interesting to know is – how many of the MPs who are in favour of this also want to see 16-year-olds being given the vote?

Let's get this right. At 16, you're not old enough to buy a fizzy drink packed with sugar and caffeine, but you are mature enough to decide who runs the country. Utter madness.

OVER the weekend, the television news bulletins were questioning whether, 15 years after he was appointed a CBE, that David Beckham had not been upgraded to a knighthood. Could it be down to his tax affairs?

Well, it could be. Then again, it could be down the fact that he hasn't actually achieved anything since then.

PM's awkward moves mirror more trouble for Corbyn

With all the problems being faced by her boss, obviously, Diane Abbott is right by his side?

Theresa May during her dad-dancing session in South Africa...next stop Strictly?

White supremacist David Duke, who has spoken out in praise of Jeremy Corbyn

May dancing on thin ice of acceptability

"I HAPPEN to be the oldest woman on television not baking cakes." Anne Robinson, 73, describing herself this week.

WITH Jeremy Corbyn fighting allegations of anti-semitism on a daily basis, you'd expect his old allies to be shouting support from the rooftops. Seriously, has anybody seen Diane Abbott?

I WROTE recently about newspapers slipping into coy mediaeval language (lass, beau, etc) when describing anything sexual. Sure enough, one of this week's reviews of Bodyguard (BBC1), refers to the leading characters having "two steamy trysts." "Tryst" is a favourite tabloid word, along with "romp." I'm not sure if there is any real difference between romping and trysting, although romping always sounds a bit lower-class. The tattooed underclass romp on budget airliners but the gentry have trysts in private jets.

I WISH to report a case of gender appropriation. Images from her African tour show Theresa May indulging in an awkward, stiff-limbed activity her aides call "dancing." It is no such thing. It is, as any father of teenage children can testify, an example of dad-dancing. This is an art form reserved for males of a certain age and is usually accompanied by one's children burying their heads in their hands. Leave it, Theresa. Dad-dancing is for dads.

THE PM's trip to Africa must come as a shock to those Brits raised on endless tales of slavery, blood diamonds and imperial oppression. Surely, the countries of the old British Empire should be lining up to spit in our faces. Truth is, if you actually visit these countries you may be amazed at the goodwill. In Sri Lanka some years ago, an old chap sighed wistfully for the days of British rule and asked me if there was any chance of us returning. In Israel, a former member of a guerilla gang who was imprisoned by the Brits told me: "If you've got to be occupied by anybody, it may as well be the British." There are, of course, disturbing memories of some terrible events. But there is also a surprising amount of friendship. As far as I know, the British Empire is the only empire in the long and savage history of imperial conquest whose former masters and servants meet on a regular basis to play cricket.

WHATEVER possessed the Scottish politician Alex Salmond, on the campaign trail in 1999, to share his Solero ice-cream with a 17-year-old student? It looked awkward back then and today, with the SNP legend accused of sexual harassment, it hardly helps. There is a lesson here for politicians everywhere. You are approached by a young and attractive supporter. Do you a) nod politely, b) shake hands, or c) let them lick your Solero? It's really not that difficult, is it?

THE abiding image from this year's Reading Festival inspired the Daily Star to adopt an oddly mediaeval sort of language that goes with rude bits and embarrassment. As the newspaper put it: "Pics include a lass holding aloft a blow-up penis. A lass? Aloft? Yea, verily, dilly-dilly and juggle my firkins. The inflatable-penis stunt must have seemed a great idea at the time. But then the image goes viral and I'm guessing the girl's family are mortified. It gets worse. These days, thanks to social media, an image is forever. Years from now, in her smartest City outfit, this lass is being interviewed for a dream job. The boss looks up from his computer with a thin smile and asks: "Miss Scroggins, would you describe yourself as impetuous. . . ?" And in that awful moment she knows precisely which image he's got on his screen. She is forever the Reading Todger Lass.

DAVID Duke, former Grand Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, has been in the news lately. First, he is a character in the new Spike Lee film, BlackKKKK I a n s m a n. Next, he joined that other far right character Nick Griffin last week in praising Jeremy Corbyn's alleged – and strongly denied – comments on Zionists. In all my years in this job, involving thousands of interviewees from princes right through to paupers, I met only two men whom I knew were close to evil but who came across as polite, engaging and disturbingly charming. One was Gerry Adams. The other was David Duke.

If you ask people how they feel about food prices rising by £7 a month because of the long, hot summer, they'll say it's a diabolical liberty and a national disgrace. Ask those same people if they'd cheerfully pay £7 a month for a glorious long, dry summer that begins in May and lasts until September and they'll whip out their cheque books in no time. It's all about how you ask the question.

FOR younger readers, a cheque book is, er, well, it really doesn't matter. Soon they will all be gone.

TALKING POINT

Substance use is no laughing matter . . .

MANY people will have noticed the plethora of innocuous looking small silver canisters littering parks, wasteland and streets.

Some people may know they are nitrous oxide gas canisters – also known as laughing gas or hippy crack.

But how many people realise how widespread the use of the canisters and 'balloons' is becoming, predictably among young people, or how deadly they can be?

Laughing gas seems fun, a harmless puff of light entertainment. But what these canisters actually do is replace oxygen in the lungs with nitrous oxide. How can that be harmless?

The effects of laughing gas include a brief feeling of euphoria but also dizziness, impaired judgment and even hallucinations. However the potential long-term damage due to the oxygen in the lungs being replaced with nitrous oxide can be a heart attack, severe brain damage or even death.

The Daily Mail recently carried the tragic story of a 24-year-old mother who had been left paralysed by inhaling laughing gas at weekends. It caused Lichtheim's disease, a degeneration of the spinal cord, and Olivia Golding can no longer walk or play with her three-year-old boy. The pictures were heart-breaking. Yet these canisters are freely available on line for just a few pence – pocket money in fact. Which is part of the problem.

Young people and even children are buying them. Perhaps they assume they are legal and, as they are becoming so widely used, harmless.

In fact nitrous oxide is covered under the The Psychoactive Substances Act of 2016 which previously tackled illegal highs. It is illegal to be used for human consumption but does have legitimate uses, including medicinal use such as in childbirth and in catering to whip cream and make frothy coffee.

Let's face it, the 'yooth' of the day will always want to be a little rebellious, to be cool, to experiment and will also cave in to peer pressure. We've all been there.

Sadly the dangers of 'laughing gas' are not well known. How many mothers have sat their children down and warned about inhaling laughing gas? Well now is the time.

The worrying amount of canisters being dumped shows how widespread this trend is becoming and I fear it will take more tragic deaths to realistically raise the profile of this deadly gas and its dangers. Don't let your child, sister or friend be one of those unfortunate victims sacrificed before the message gets through.

Hard-up families need free buses

THE first duty of local and regional government should be to defend the interests of the poor and not the rich elite, like them, who can well look after themselves.

Instead, these councillors, MPs and MEPs see their top priority is to provide prestigious, grossly extravagant and wasteful Metro tram and Sprint bus schemes on the back of the billions going into HS2.

These people see their top priority to provide free car parking for two hours at council car parks. Low income families do not have cars.

Our local and regional politicians see another top priority is to spend many hundreds of millions of pounds on expensive tram extensions and Sprint buses.

Low income families need existing buses that have free fares. Over 60s like me have had them for over ten years. The money from scrapping tram extensions and Sprint buses should be used to give everyone free bus travel with bus lanes and traffic light priority to speed them on their way.

Badge can be a lifeline for parents

WITH reference to the letter from Robert W White re the Blue Badge. My youngest son is autistic and doesn't have a Blue Badge because of Government cuts when they moved the goalposts again.

Autism does very much need a Blue Badge for when the child has sensory overload they can be out of control. My Autistic son is now 6ft and 19 and in many ways is quite childlike and has no danger awareness. The need to be as close to the shop or whatever we are visiting is vital.

My son doesn't have a badge but as soon as they make them available I will be applying. The stress levels for the parents also must be considered. Some people have more than one autistic child and this is a lifeline.

Working shoppers miss out

A shopkeeper spent over £1,500 on cans of beer, etc, that was on offer at a well-known supermarket, to sell on leaving the shelves bare.

This always happens. People who shop after work have not got a chance. These greedy people are rubbing their hands at our expense and it shouldn't be allowed.

It's time to speak out and let them know your concerns.

It's bananas!

IT is claimed that fruit and vegetable prices will rise but if the public would accept carrots, cucumbers, potatoes and tomatoes that are not perfectly shaped – instead of two million tonnes going to landfill each year – there would be no shortages or price increases. People demand vegetables that are perfect and then cut them up. What does shape matter then?

Puzzled by bus number changes

WHAT do the National Express bus company think they are gaining by altering bus route numbers?

Easy example, they are changing number 13 to number 11A. Easy solution, just fiddle with the controls on the front of the buses.

But what about the multitude of bus stops? All are being altered, at a cost. And what has happened to the fleet of 'special' buses, that they purchased and painted green to run on the Number 1 route from Dudley to Tettenhall Green?

All buses being used at present are old diesel, red ones. Is this a saving, and helping pollution as the green buses were intended to?

Autism and badge parking

IN reply to comments regarding Blue Badges been given to sufferers of autism. My five-year-old grandson suffers from autism and after brain surgery last year to relieve seizures is now partially sighted. He is unable to walk far unassisted. Mr White wonders why SUVs are parked in disabled bays. In my daughter's case this is so she can fit my grandson's specialised large pushchair into her car.

8 Ten in Dudley die waiting for a transplant

Halesowen Chronicle Thursday, September 6, 2018

SEVENTY-TWO people from the Black Country and Staffordshire have died while waiting for an organ transplant in the last five years – including ten from Dudley.

The shocking statistics have been revealed today by NHS Blood and Transplant in a desperate bid to get more donors during Organ Donation Week.

NHS Blood and Transplant says that although the number of donors is increasing and the waiting lists are reducing, 6,000 patients in the UK are currently hoping for a transplant. More people in the West Midlands are being urged to join the register.

Nationally, around three people a day died in need of an organ.

Emma Lawson, a specialist nurse organ donation team manager, who covers hospitals in the West Midlands, said: "It's tragic so many people from the West Midlands have died waiting for a transplant. What is shocking is that many of those lives could have been saved, had more families agreed to donate organs. People are dying every day because some families are not talking about donation."

"We don't want people to die because of a fatal complacency, that because you know you want to be an organ donor you presume your loved ones know it too. Please, let your family know your decision and ask them if they want to be donors."

Car hit street light

A CAR crashed into a lamp post outside a row of shops in the Black Country, smashing plant pots. The red SEAT was embedded in the lamp post after the crash in Colley Gate on Saturday night. Emergency services were sent to the scene but it is believed no-one was badly hurt. The crash took place outside Chainmakers Fish and Chip shop and the Nisa Local.

Drunk ex smashed up former partner's TV with a hammer

Cash machine blown apart by thieves

TWO men blew up a cash machine outside a Cradley shop, stealing hundreds of pounds in the early hours.

They targeted the cashpoint outside the Nisa store in Colley Gate, using a gas bottle to detonate the machine before stealing the cash from inside the wrecked machine. The pair then fled the scene in a white car towards Lye.

The latest incident marks the second time the Nisa store has been targeted by criminals in a fortnight.

West Midlands Police has now launched an investigation following the theft, which is believed to have taken place at around 2.30am on Friday.

The cash machine has since been boarded up.

Andrew Newton, who has been manager of the Nisa store for the last four years, said the crooks were seen on CCTV to move out of the way of the machine before they detonated the gas.

The 41-year-old said: "It was about half past two in the morning. It was a white Fiesta that pulled up outside. They got a gas bottle out and it stood around about chest height."

"They linked it to the cash machine and pumped it with gas and promptly blew it up. It was obviously very dangerous. They moved out of the way before the gas was detonated. There was a bit of fire."

"I do not think they got much money really – it was in the hundreds."

Blown up – the wrecked cash machine outside a supermarket in Cradley

A JILTED father-of-two went on terrifying drunken wrecking spree at the Stourbridge home of his former partner.

The pair had split up and Sean Payne was banned from having any contact with the woman after beating her up on March 27 last year but repeatedly broke the restraining order this summer, Wolverhampton Crown Court was told.

The victim heard the sound of breaking glass at her Shenstone Road home and found the lounge window had been smashed shortly after midnight on June 20. She saw the 23-year-old defendant running away.

Payne struck again late at night ten days later when he followed her and a man into the house in an effort to talk to her but when that failed he angrily snatched up a hammer that was lying nearby.

Detox

Mr Matthew Brook, prosecuting, said the defendant, who had a drink problem, accidentally hit her on the side, throwing the hammer with which he smashed a new £500 TV. He handed himself in to police on July 10.

Mr Oliver Woolhouse, defending, said: "He has been struggling with alcohol addiction and this led to them splitting up. He has been through seven weeks of detox after being held in custody following his arrest."

"Drink has been the trigger and, if he can stay away from it with the help of probation and other services, his offending will end."

Payne, of The Broadway, Norton, admitted harassment, criminal damage and breaching the restraining order. He was given a ten-month jail term suspended for two years plus 200 hours of unpaid work. He was told to pay £140 compensation and the restraining order was extended.

Food bank in appeal for more supplies

STOCK levels are 'critically low' at the Black Country Foodbank, which has launched an urgent appeal for donations.

It comes amid a growing demand for three-day emergency food supplies as more people struggle to make ends meet.

The charity provided a total of 182,000 meals between April 2017 to March 2018. Of these, 60,020 were for children, an increase of five per cent on the previous year.

More than 6,750 children are expected to have been fed by the food bank during the six-week school summer holidays.

The increase in people seeking help has left supplies low and the charity is now appealing for schools, churches and other organisations to support them with their traditional harvest time events. See www.blackcountryfoodbank.org.uk website.

Charity to launch first suicide text helpline

A MENTAL health charity is appealing to businesses to help raise £40,000 to set up a new text helpline aimed at reducing suicide rates.

The Kaleidoscope Plus Group based in West Bromwich wants to launch its National Suicide Text Prevention Line Service.

The charity, which is working to tackle the stigma surrounding mental health issues, believes a text service will save lives by giving people in need an easier way to seek help.

Chief executive Monica Shafaq said: "From our research and from talking to the people who use our services, we know that talking is one of the hardest things to do.

"People prefer to communicate by social media, text and email. Opening up and saying you need help is a difficult thing to do. Taking away a voice and face removes that barrier."

Effective

The charity also believes that a text service would be more effective for teenagers and young people as well as men under the age of 45. Current statistics show that more men under the age of 45 die as a result of suicide than road traffic accidents, HIV and assaults combined.

Suicide is a growing problem which can happen to men, women and children of all ages, backgrounds and religions, all races.

Every day 15 people die in the UK due to suicide and each death is said to affect 150 people left behind. "The text service will save lives. Even if it just helps one person and saves a life – you can't put a price on that," said Mrs Shafaq.

"Suicide is something that people don't talk about. It's still taboo. We want to try to eliminate that by raising awareness and having services like this," she added. The charity hopes to launch the service, which will cost £120,000, before Christmas as this is traditionally a time when more people are in need.

Chief executive of the Kaleidoscope Plus Group, Monica Shafaq

"Christmas is a very happy time for lots of people but for it's a really sad time for others. It's a difficult time of year," said Mrs Shafaq.

There is no available funding for this type of service so the charity is looking to attract the support and investment of responsible businesses and organisations who can help. It also has a number of events planned to raise funds including its Annual Charity Gala Ball at Birmingham Library on November 15 with sponsorship packages available.

The charity is also launching a suicide bereavement support service ahead of World Suicide Prevention Day on Monday, September 10.

Any businesses interested in supporting the charity can contact Monica on 0121 565 5605.

HOME OWNERS AGED 50+

Protect your home from future care home fees

Does this sound familiar to you?

"We've made our Wills, leaving everything to each other first and then to the children."

These are known as Mirror Wills. Sounds reassuring enough, doesn't it? But your children could end up with very little - or even nothing at all.

If your surviving spouse has to go into care, they will have to use their assets to pay for their care until they get down to their last £14,250. Therefore, it's not a good idea to leave your half share of the home to your surviving partner but instead leave them the USE of your share. This can be achieved by making new Property Trust Wills.

These legitimate steps must be taken while you are both alive and in reasonably good mental health. It is therefore important for couples to act NOW!

Most of our clients come to us having already made standard Mirror Wills, or they've been meaning to make a Will but simply haven't got around to it. With Property Trust Wills, yourself and your spouse/partner each leave your half share of the home to the children in Trust, but state that they are not to receive it during the lifetime of the surviving spouse/partner.

This half would then NOT be included in any future means test calculations for care fees. The surviving spouse is free to sell their share of the home, raise cash or move house. Your children are powerless to intervene but simply have to wait for their inheritance, as they would have done previously.

This invaluable information guide explains why we do NOT recommend giving the house to your children during your lifetime (deliberate deprivation) or selling up and moving into an annex in their garden!

It also includes details of Lasting Power of Attorney and our special Bloodline Trust Wills which help prevent your children and grandchildren from losing their inheritance due to a child's divorce, remarriage or financial difficulties.

Electrician left homes in a dangerous condition

Boozy traybake saves Terry

Terry survives to bake again in Great British Bake Off's bread week

BLACK Country Great British Bake Off contestant Terry again survived by the skin of his teeth on the second episode of this year's competition.

The retired air steward, from Dudley, failed to impress judges Paul Hollywood and Prue Leith but avoided the dreaded boot.

After a disappointing performance in the opening biscuit week, the 56-year-old again failed to impress in cake week, screened by Channel 4 on Tuesday. But he was saved by the baking of 30-year-old civil servant Luke, who struggled more.

It was a bright start for Terry's boozy Rum and Raisin Traybake, was praised as a 'real pleasure to eat' by the judges. But his spinach-infused Le Gâteau Vert for the technical challenge was ranked eight out of 11. The final showstopper challenge saw contestants create a Chocolate Collar Cake with minimum of two tiers.

Terry's ambitious Champagne and Strawberries Eiffel Tower cake ended up half finished as the top of the tower melted in the heat.

After being given a lifeline, Terry will be hoping to turn his fortunes around in bread week.

A BUNGLING electrician, who had not updated his skills for around 40 years, left the homes of his customers in a dangerous condition, a judge heard.

Alan Riley boasted of his 35 years experience in an advert but failed to mention he was not registered to any official body and the last time that he had a valid qualification was in the 1970s.

Wolverhampton Crown Court was told that work done by the 65-year-old grandfather at two addresses was sub standard and 'dangerous'.

The defendant was chosen to fit lights, sockets and a fuse board at a house in Commonsidge, Pensnett, after he quoted £850 in January 2017.

Riley was paid £600 but £250 was withheld because the ceiling had been damaged when the lights were installed.

Then the couple discovered the electrician had left bare cable, cut earth wires, broken sockets and put in a fuse board with a vital part missing, said Mr Alexander Barnfield, prosecuting. It cost them £434 to have the faults corrected.

Warrant

Dudley Council got a warrant to search Riley's property on November 17 and found a list of addresses where he worked. They checked and discovered the defendant had also installed a faulty fuse board at a house in Chiltern Road, Amblecote.

Mr Stephen Hamblett, defending, said: He had a career of over 30 years without complaint until this happened. He qualified a long time ago but has not kept pace with the changing standards."

Riley from Osberton Drive, Dudley, who has now retired, was given an 18 month conditional discharge and ordered to pay £664 compensation and £1,800 towards the costs of the case.

Figures show longer wait to see a GP

NEARLY one in four people in Dudley face a week-long wait before they can see a GP, according to the annual NHS GP survey.

The figure of 23 per cent has increased from 14 per cent.

The appointment figures are worse in South Staffordshire (25 per cent) but slightly better in Wolverhampton (20 per cent, or one in five people) and Sandwell (19 per cent).

The statistics were met with concern at the Royal College of GPs, where chair Professor Helen Stokes-Lampard, said: "Patients are still waiting too long for a GP appointment, and too many are not getting an appointment when they want one."

"It means patients might not be getting the treatment they need in the early stages of their condition and their conditions will potentially become more serious."

14Chance to go behind scenes at civic buildings

SIX important heritage buildings in Dudley will be throwing open their doors to the public as part of Heritage Open Day on Saturday.

The event is a celebration of the country's architecture and culture, and venues not usually open to the public allow access to enable visitors to discover the hidden treasures within.

Visitors will be able to view the 1920s-built grade II listed Coroner's Court, which retains its original fittings and furnishings.

They can also see the famous Hans Feibusch mural, together with the rarely seen preliminary sketches, at the Town Hall, and step back in time at the Unitarian Old Meeting House, which is one of the oldest buildings in Dudley.

Visitors will also be able to sit in the council chamber where important decisions are made, and have a rare behind the scenes peek at the ancient 'Top' and 'Bottom' churches, where there will be tours, refreshments and special events.

Anyone wishing to view the buildings should turn up at most venues between 10am and 4pm, with the exception of Dudley Town Hall, which will be open between 11am and 3pm. No booking is required.

Heritage Open Days is a scheme that encourages owners of historically important buildings to open them free of charge to the public.

Blues star Joanne sells out the Robin

A HOMECOMING concert by internationally-renowned blues star Joanne Shaw Taylor has sold out at a Black Country venue. Bilston's Robin 2 club is hosting the Wednesbury-born star as part of her upcoming UK tour.

The guitarist and singer, who recently signed a deal with Sony Music, on the Silvertone label, for three albums will be playing the 700-capacity venue on October 7.

Stars say farewell to Sludge

COMEDIANS, entertainers and football legends gave their final, heartfelt tributes to beloved Black Country comic Ian 'Sludge' Lees at his funeral.

More than 100 family members, friends and celebrities packed St Mary's Church in Cannock to say goodbye. Mourners included comedians Jasper Carrott and Johnny Carroll, and Wolves legends John Richards and Don Goodman.

The Cannock-born star and Wolves supporter died on July 30, aged 74, just weeks after being diagnosed with cancer. He is survived by his partner Diane Mills and four children, Amanda, Daniel, Sophie and Tom. Emotional and tearful tributes were made by each of his children during the service last Wednesday.

His eldest son Daniel said: "Our dad had presence, timing and the ability to turn all situations into his favour. He was never happier than when he had a room full of people in hysterics." Tom added: "Dad always tried to see the funny side of things. It's his fault too that I had an unhealthy obsession with Wolverhampton Wanderers. Some of the best times with dad were at Molineux. It would take us an hour to get round though as people were always stopping him for photos. He really was loved, he was just so kind to others."

Sludge's manager and close friend Jake Elcock called him a 'comedy legend'. He said: "There are certain comedy routines that will always be associated with him - the Eric Cantona TV sketch for example. Even now every time a football player gets a red card my grandsons still chant 'what they sent him off for?'

"And most of all his boxing routine. No matter how many times you saw it it still brought gales of laughter - 'There was a familiar face in the third row, it was mine. I got knocked down, the ref said get up at nine, I said what time is it now? I was a chicken weight, I always had the stuffing knocked out of me'."

TV comedian Jasper Carrott attended the service, and paid tribute.

"We were this band of comic brothers. We all looked after each other," he said. "I worked with him many a time. He was a great comic and so reliable. There's a comedy club up there now. When I get up there I'm going to have trouble getting on the stage."

And Black Country entertainer Kenny Craig said: "We had a great camaraderie. They were fabulous days. Ian led a great life."

School days and all that jazz recalled by John

BLACK Country historian, jazz musician and raconteur John Sparry has produced two new books taking a nostalgic look back.

John, whose colourful life have seen him make appearances on BBC radio, looks back at some of the characters who attended Stourbridge's King Edward VI Grammar School – now King Edward VI College – in his book They All Were.

His other title, Crazy Rhythm, is a fond memoir of five well-known musicians who regularly played at famous jazz venue The Trumpet pub, Bilston.

John, who attended the school in the 1950s, is well-known in the Black Country for his bookshop in Enville Road, Wall Heath, which has been frozen in time since he was a child. He has never owned a television, cooker or washing machine, cooks his food on an open fire, and says his one concession to modern life is an electric kettle.

MEMORY LANE

King Edward VI Grammar School dates back to 1552, and its most famous former pupil was 18th century essayist, moralist and lexicographer Samuel Johnson, who found fame as the author of what is generally regarded as Britain's first dictionary.

Romantic

Another former pupil who became a major player in the literary world was Gerald Rusgrove Mills, the son of a Stourbridge solicitor, who in partnership with Charles Boon set up a publishing house in 1908 which would later become synonymous with romantic novels. John is well aware of the cynicism regarding the Mills & Boon brand in today's literary world, but says that was not always the case.

"Lest you greet this with a patronising smile, it must be noted that in their early days the firm of Mills & Boon published many scholastic works and books of reference," he says. "In fact the name of Rupert Deakin, an ex-King Edward headmaster, is numbered among Mills & Boon's pre-First World War authors."

A more recent writer to emerge from the school is David Gray, the Kingswinford-born tennis writer whose columns in The Guardian from 1956 to 1976 made him one of the best-known sports journalists of his era.

The book features a number of anecdotes and memories of formidable and long-serving teacher Daisy Druller.

John's other book, Crazy Rhythm, looks at the lives of jazz musicians Derek Halford, Mick Webber, Pete Cater, Bryn Venus, and Richard Werrett, who became firm favourites at The Trumpet. It includes many anecdotes, photographs and newspaper cuttings about the famous five.

Both books are on sale at John's shop at 15 Enville Road, and at Ashwood nurseries, near Kingswinford. Call John on 01384 359109.

Oh, What a night! You will be Beggin' for more

REVIEW: Jersey Boys,
Wolverhampton Grand Theatre
By Alison Norton

THE audience was left Beggin' for more as the latest UK tour of Jersey Boys took the Grand Theatre by storm.

Having won 57 major awards worldwide, the show has an impressive history and it is no wonder that audiences across the country are still flocking to enjoy hit after hit in the tale of this sensational 60s group from the wrong side of the tracks.

Essentially a jukebox musical, the storyline is of course factual, so the show has far more depth than its counterparts, allowing the cast to really get to grips with the characterisations of the band members and give the audience an insight into life in the rough and tough world of New Jersey.

Unforgettable

Those of you who don't know much about the Four Seasons may be shocked and surprised by their somewhat dubious existence.

Far from being the boys next door, these were true New Jersey lads, all of whom spent some time inside, making it difficult to perform and record. However, their collaboration resulted in huge hits such as Big Girls Don't Cry, Sherry, Walk Like a Man and My Eyes Adored You.

In Act One as the storyline developed, we enjoyed some of the group's lesser known songs including Cry for Me, I'm in the Mood for Love and Sunday Kind of Love, all of which were equally appealing. It would be unfair to choose between the four leading men, as each one is perfectly cast, but a conversation heard on the way out of the theatre confirmed my thoughts that James Alexander Gibbs had done an impeccable job of portraying Frankie

Jersey Boys cast Declan Egan, Michael Watson, Simon Bailey and Lewis Griffiths

Valli, certainly in terms of his unforgettable falsetto vocals, but also his warm, charismatic personality which gushed over the floodlights.

FrankieValli knew personal tragedy as well as fame and fortune and Gibbs' interpretation of Fallen Angel, a song remembering his deceased daughter, was heart-wrenching but beautifully delivered. Another highlight was his performance of My Mother's Eyes, but for me, the delivery of arguably the Four Seasons' most famous tune, Can't Take My Eyes Off You, completely stole the show.

Simon Bailey as the band's founder, Tommy DeVito, was arrogant and shady; the perfect strutting Italian Stallion. He gave outstanding characterisation and an excellent vocal performance.

Declan Egan as Bob Gaudio, the songwriter behind many of the band's major hits, offered a solid, suave performance, while the charming Lewis Griffiths had the humour, appeal and superb bass voice of Nick Massi.

The ladies in the cast were not to be outdone, including a feisty, full-blooded portrayal of Valli's long suffering wife Mary by Tara Young and a great rendition of My Boyfriend's Back from the girls playing The Angels.

The show just oozed class and professionalism.

Jersey Boys runs until Saturday.

Timeless style still a winner in showrooms

ANTIQUES AND COLLECTIBLES

with John Ridgway of Perry & Phillips

OUR last auction saw us selling some pieces of lovely Ercol furniture for extremely good prices – so I thought this week we could look at what makes this style so hugely popular today.

Firstly, there is a wide range to choose from and a number of these pieces proved to be the subjects of some fierce bidding during our recent sale.

An Ercol elm Windsor glazed bookcase on cupboard, in a light colour, sold for £230, while an Ercol elm Windsor writing bureau with fall front, two doors and one drawer went for £110 and an Ercol elm book trolley made £90.

Ercol has long been famous for producing sleek and stylish furniture, the company dating back to 1920 when it was founded in High Wycombe by Italian designer Lucian Ercolani (hence the name!).

Lucian's goal was to produce the best in design and craftsmanship and in 1944 he was contracted by the Board of Trade to supply a number of low-cost Windsor chairs.

The family-run company used elm because they could 'steam bend' it, this proved to be a great idea and the company went from strength to strength, selling affordable furniture to very keen post-war buyers.

These mass-produced items became hugely popular in the 1940s and 1950s, the famous Windsor Kitchen Chair was bought by millions of people and Ercol became a household name in terms of stylish yet affordable furniture.

The sleek, timeless design continued to prove appealing into the 1960s, the Ercol Butterfly Chair being another trademark piece, and the range expanded over the decades to include wardrobes, bookcases, sideboards, tables and cabinets.

Other classic designs were the Stacking Chair, the Loveseat and the Plank table, all of which are sought after in the saleroom.

Ercol is amongst those designs of furniture that never seem to go out of fashion, largely because they fit seamlessly into almost any room setting, regardless of whether that room is in a period house or a contemporary one.

As with all vintage and pre-loved furniture check before you buy for any signs of wear and tear.

See you at the next sale of antiques and collectibles!

* The next Perry and Phillips sale of antiques and collectables will take place at the Mill Street saleroom, Low Town, Bridgnorth on Tuesday, October 2, from 10.30am.

* Viewing is during the weekend and on Monday prior to the sale and catalogues are available from the saleroom or online at www.perryandphillips.co.uk. Newcomers to the auction should arrive in plenty of time to register and be allocated a bidding number and bids may be made (by prior arrangement) over the phone or left with the auctioneer.

* Perry and Phillips hold valuation days, for sale items only, every Wednesday from 10am until 4pm.

Could you be suffering from a sleep disorder?

Overwork can impair your sleep

FEELING your eyelids flutter when you should be concentrating at work? Liz Connor looks into why you might be feeling fatigued...

There are plenty of reasons (both self-inflicted or otherwise) why you might arrive at work feeling slightly worse for wear and yawning into your third Americano.

Sleepless nights are never fun, but all of us will experience tiredness at some point throughout our lives, and the odd disrupted night of sleep isn't usually a cause for concern. If you find yourself frequently nodding off and fighting sleep at work though, it could be a sign that something else is up.

What could be the reasons for your persistent sleepiness? Here, Matthew Reed, founder of health insurance company Equipme.com explains just a few.

1. Stress

"It's a sad but true reality that stress has become part of our everyday lives, and unfortunately work is usually one of the main contributors," says Reed.

Stress can be physically and emotionally exhausting; it's how our bodies react to situations that our mind deems threatening, uncomfortable or perilous. "Usually, your heart rate will increase, breathing quickens and blood pressure rises, so dealing with stress is key to prevent feeling the need to have a nap during work hours," he explains.

"Try deep breathing, taking a break from your screen or confiding in someone close to you, to relieve some of the burden."

2. Overworking

"Overworking goes hand-in-hand with stress and often produces the same results. It can seriously impair your sleep, leaving you feeling groggy and exhausted," says Reed.

"Not only does overworking increase your chances of dropping off at your desk, along with a myriad of other issues, but it's actually bad for your employer in the long run. Productivity often falls if employees reach the end of their tether and experience burnout. If you feel as if your boss has given you far too much work and you truly believe it's negatively affecting your health, Reed says you should speak to management and see if you can divide your workload more fairly.

3. Poor diet

We all know that diet has a serious effect on how you feel. "If you don't have enough iron, for example, then you could be left feeling sluggish, weak and distracted," says Reed.

"If you do find yourself struggling to keep your eyes open next time you're working on a serious project, think about what it is you've eaten recently and consider adapting your diet to promote a healthier and more active lifestyle. If you aren't sure whether your diet could be a contributing factor, start a food diary. Too much sugar or fat, for instance, can result in energy crashes throughout the day.

"Instead of eating sugary snacks, try and fuel yourself with natural energy sources such as quinoa, honey, spinach and even peanut butter."

4. Sleep disorders

"Falling asleep persistently throughout the day or feeling groggy could be a sign that you're struggling with a sleep disorder.

"Excessive daytime sleepiness (EDS), sleep apnea and narcolepsy are all sleep disorders that can cause you to not get enough sleep at night," says Reed.

Hoping to help – Hannah with a client

Power of herbs – Hannah is proof they work

Herbs can heal and I'm the proof, says Hannah

In the mix – getting ingredients

HANNAH Charman was just 15 years old when she had the shock of her life and suddenly found she was struggling to walk.

Her mystery illness drained all her energy, leaving her exhausted all the time and missing months of lessons.

But her family struggled to convince her doctor, who believed her symptoms were down to Hannah just being "a malingerer" and disliking school, that something more serious was going on.

It turned out she was suffering from Chronic Fatigue Syndrome, which commonly causes extreme tiredness and makes it hard for someone to carry out ordinary daily activities.

With no one else to turn to in mainstream medicine, Hannah's parents took her to see a homeopathic doctor in London and this was a moment which she says she will never forget.

Not only did she get the help she desperately needed to say goodbye to the condition, but the experience also had a major influence on her future career.

Until then she had wanted to be a vet, but suddenly her path changed and she studied for an honours degree in western herbal medicine for four years at Middlesex

By Lisa Harrison

University. Now, with her business Physic Health Consulting, she has clinics in Perton and Tettenhall, where she helps patients through a combination of herbal medicine, health coaching and reiki.

Looking back on her illness, Hannah, who is mother to three-year-old Jacob, says: "My dad picked me up from school one day and by the time he had parked up I couldn't get out of the car.

"It came on in 10 minutes and I was ill for weeks but just thought it was a bad virus. However, it was a year later, when I was 15, and was going to catch a bus that I suddenly found I couldn't walk properly."

"I somehow managed to get back home and then I was off school for months. My doctor told me I was a malingerer and that I had a problem with school."

"None of that was true – my dad was having to hold me up just to get me into the doctors surgery. It was awful that I was just seen as being lazy."

Hannah said it was a combination of homeopathy, hypnotherapy and reiki which cured her condition.

"After not having any luck with the doctor my parents took me to Harley Street in London to see a homeopathic doctor and he was the first person to take me seriously.

"Homeopathy drastically improved my condition in just a few weeks, and hypnotherapy and reiki saw off the last of it."

During her work she sees a lot of patients that struggle with a range of problems from stress, anxiety and fatigue to depression, high blood pressure and eczema.

Treatments are personalised according to each patient, often combining health coaching with herbal medicine to overhaul their diet and lifestyle, so that within six to eight weeks they see a big difference.

Hannah says there are many every day items that you may already have around the house which can bring many benefits. Chamomile tea is wonderful for soothing screaming babies, especially those that won't go to sleep.

The 41-year-old's other tips including keeping an aloe vera plant. "They are so useful. You can use the fresh gel to soothe minor sunburn or heat rash," explains Hannah. "A couple of bruised cardamom pods in hot water makes a calming tea for tummy bugs and indigestion," she adds.

"It's easy to soothe ear ache with an oat compress. Make sure it's comfortably warm before putting it onto the affected ear."

AT YOUR LEISURE

Dan's the man for soulful tunes

If you like George Ezra, Paolo Nutini or Jack Savoretti, check out Shrewsbury singer-songwriter Dan Owen, whose debut album, Stay Awake With Me, reveals a major new talent with a soulful voice.

Dan says of his new release: "I like to think of it as a collection of personal stories and experiences. I feel like this is what I have been working for since I first picked up a guitar at eight years old. A lot has happened since then and these songs cover some of the high and low points for me and those closest to me."

He is certainly entering a crowded market, the success of Ezra, Ed Sheeran, James Bay and the like, means there is no shortage of mellow-voiced sensitive souls who strum guitar. His debut follows a well worn path with its use of gospel choir and uplifting strings but songs such as What Is A Man and Splinter show lots of promise. Icarus and Hideaway have already garnered attention, the former making the Radio 2 playlist and the latter Radio 1.

Dan's a man with plenty of potential and can build on this debut. After supporting Isaac Gracie and playing festivals, he plays Birmingham's Castle & Falcon, Moseley Road, on October 13 and has a home town gig at the Theatre Severn on November 16.

Meanwhile, Wolverhampton singer-songwriter Scott Matthews, whose latest album is The Great Untold, has nearly sold out his home city gig at the Newhampton Arts Centre on September 28.

Have a go at falconry at the Midland Game Fair

Escape to the country

THE Midland Game Fair returns to Weston Park this month, offering a host of country-themed events, activities and demonstrations, adding up to a great day out for all the family.

The line up in the main arena will include performances by The Knights of Middle England, Ye Olde Redtail Falconry, as well as musical from the Coventry Corps of Drums and a traditional Hound Parade.

At the Midland Game Fair, over the weekend of September 15 and 16, there will be musical entertainment including the popular Folk Roots Festival across three stages.

There is also a Food Festival and the Beer in the Park area in which to take a break from visiting more than 700 trade stands selling countryside clothes and accessories

Traditional country pursuits will include displays by master netsman Brin Brinded and there will also be an opportunity to try the Survival Camp with ex-SAS Soldier Bob Podesta.

There's the Prince Albert Angling Fishing Village, a Working Dog Village, Falconry Village and enthusiasts can enjoy a festival showcasing of shooting sports.

The event organised by Countryman Fairs features the finals of the Chudleys Gundog Championship, BASC Clay Shooting and BFTA European Field Target Championships.

To discover more about this year's event or book tickets (under-16s go free with a full paying adult) visit www.midlandgamefair.co.uk website.

Spike is Goon but not forgotten

The first ever UK tour of the classic radio comedy The Goon Show visits Birmingham's New Alexandra Theatre on September 18.

In 1951 the landscape of British comedy changed dramatically when The Goon Show burst onto the airwaves of the BBC Home Service. Spike Milligan, Peter Sellers, Harry Secombe and, in the early days, Michael Bentine brought a brand of surreal humour unlike anything that had been heard before and revolutionised comedy.

With its bizarre characters, fantastical plots and running jokes, The Goon Show captured the imagination of the British public and made household names of its three main stars, all of whom would go on to achieve fame.

Now in Goon Show creator Spike Milligan's centenary year, Apollo Theatre Company, who recently produced the 50th anniversary tour of another classic radio comedy, Round the Horne, have teamed up with Spike Milligan Productions to bring the show to the stage for the first time.

Producer, Norma Farnes, Spike's assistant and manager for 36 years, says: "There is no better time than the centenary of Spike's birth to celebrate his most enduring creation. Spike's sense of the absurd created a whole new form of comedy which fuelled everyone's imagination and still does today."

Brimming wit and surreal humour, The Goon Show promises to be a must-see for classic comedy fans.

Rebus returns with a new case at Birmingham Rep

Charles Lawson

Scottish detective John Rebus is being brought to the stage when the latest story in the popular crime series gets its world première at Birmingham Repertory Theatre.

Ian Rankin's Edinburgh-set Rebus novels have dominated the detective fiction scene for decades with the subsequent television series ensuring the detective's legendary status. Now, alongside award-winning playwright Rona Munro, Rankin brings his beloved creation to the stage for the first time.

Rebus: Long Shadows finds the former detective inspector living in retirement and trying to keep off the booze but his past life won't let him be, and when the daughter of a murder victim appears outside his flat, he's back on the case.

Taking on the role made famous on television by John Hannah and later by Ken Stott is Charles Lawson, best known for playing Jim McDonald in Coronation Street. Alongside Lawson will be John Stahl (from Game of Thrones) as Big Ger Cafferty and Cathy Tyson (Band of Gold/Grange Hill) as DI Siobhan Clarke.

The play, directed by Robin Lefevre, will be staged at Birmingham Rep from September 20 to October 6 before touring.

Cinders will Wiggle Wine to the ball with Donchez

Britain's Got Talent star Donchez Dacres wiggled his way into the hearts of the nation with his catchy Wiggle Wine song.

Now Wolverhampton-based Donchez will wiggle his way to the ball as he stars in a charity pantomime in the Black Country later this year.

The 61-year-old singing AA man will be joining the cast of Cinderella, the Mary Stevens Hospice's annual pantomime at Stourbridge Town Hall in November.

Amanda Bowen, deputy head of fundraising and lottery at the Stourbridge-based hospice, said: "Much like the rest of the nation, we were wiggling and wining from the moment he appeared on our screens and we could not be more thrilled that he's joined the cast for this show.

"Community is at the heart of everything we do here at the charity, and to be able to let our supporters know that a performer of his calibre will be on hand to entertain them in support of the families relying on our care is just such a special thing to be able to do."

Cinderella will run for five shows at the town hall, between November 28 and 30. For tickets, call 01384 377778 or visit www.seaty.co.uk/cinderella website.

It is the second show organised by the hospice, after their production of the Wizard of Oz sold out in January with X Factor star Wagner as the Wizard.

Cooking up a treat in ruins of Ludlow Castle

This weekend marks the 24th Ludlow Food Festival and the line-up mixes renowned chefs and food writers with more than 180 producers from across the Marches area.

There will be tasting, talks, demonstrations and more at the festival, which starts tomorrow (Friday) and continues to Sunday. Organisers have secured some big names for this year including Thomasina Miers, founder of Wahaca, and Brad Carter from the Michelin-starred Carters of Moseley, a regular on TV's Saturday Kitchen. There is also strong representation from chefs local to the Welsh border counties.

Italy-based Rachel Roddy, acclaimed for both her cookbooks and her regular Guardian column, will also be appearing at Ludlow, as will Great British Bake Off's Howard Middleton and Sandy Docherty, plus rugby star turned Celebrity Masterchef winner Phil Vickery.

The festival is one of the town's biggest events, regularly attracting more than 15,000 people to the grounds of Ludlow Castle across three days. For details visit www.ludlowfoodfestival.co.uk website.

Punk's not dead, it's just Idles at the moment

Bristol band Idles are fast getting a reputation as the best new punk band in a generation. The high-energy five-piece outfit will come to Birmingham next month as part of their Tour of Joy, following the release last week of their incendiary second album, Joy as an Act of Resistance.

It's hard to imagine a more volatile mosh pit than that which will greet such tracks as Rottweiler and Danny Nedelko, the latter a punk anthem on a par with Babylon's Burning (The Ruts) and White Riot (The Clash). Singer Joe Talbot is a force to be reckoned with, a refreshing blast of righteous anger when tackling such subjects as class, nationalism, immigration and toxic masculinity. He also shows an empathetic side, particularly on June. Few other bands would take on such a subject as the death of a child. But they are not, an air of positivity pervades their raw, infectious agit-pop.

Idles will be in concert at the O2 Institute in Birmingham, on October 26, a busy night at the Digbeth venue with veteran reggae act The Mighty Diamonds and singer-songwriter Sophie Hunger in the other two rooms.

Bear Grylls

Celebrity Island with Bear Grylls (Channel 4, 9pm)
New series. Another party of celebrities brave a deserted Pacific island. This year's team of castaways consists of Olympic rower James Cracknell, boxer Anthony Ogogo, Hollywood star Eric Roberts, Pete Wicks (Towie), Montana Brown (Love Island), transgender campaigner and journalist Paris Lees, actor Martin Kemp, TV medic Dr Saleyha Ahsan, former model Jo Wood and Roxanne Pallett (Emmerdale). Pete takes charge as they look for a place to camp, but his decision to leave most of his fresh water behind stirs up resentment as the weather worsens.

7.00 Countryfile. Anita Rani and John Craven present the show from Essex, reporting on how plant-based superfoods like borage and chia are becoming more popular and how timber that has washed up on the county's shoreline from around the world is being repurposed. Including Weather for the Week Ahead.
8.00 Fake or Fortune? Fiona Bruce and art expert Philip Mould investigate the first work of sculpture featured on the show, an unusual piece called The Gazing Head, which may have been made by Alberto Giacometti in 1930s Paris. The quest to uncover the truth is complicated by the fact that the sculpture was once broken into several pieces by a cat.
9.00 Bodyguard. As the security service's position grows weaker, the police takes the opportunity to reclaim control of the investigation. David struggles to come to terms with the devastating events of the previous 24 hours, and finds himself being questioned by counter-terrorism agents. Pushed to breaking point, he finds an unexpected source of support in his estranged wife, who leaves him determined to take an active role in the case – starting by finding out more about those in the government who work closely with Julia.

MG's hatchback receives a revamp

By Ian Donaldson

A thorough revamp of MG's little hatchback marks another step in the awakening of an automotive giant.

For more than a decade the famously British badge has been planted on the nose of cars coming from China and produced by one of the world's biggest car companies, SAIC.

But you have to look hard to spot a new MG on our roads, where 813 of them were registered in July. That only just beat the rather more upmarket Porsche, with 758 sales, but it's an upward trend.

And that's important; with sales for the month increased by a more than encouraging 166 per cent there is optimism in the air around the MG brand.

This new reworking of the MG3 aims to keep that sales trend heading upward. With other new models due in the next three years, including plug-in electric hybrids and even a battery powered roadster, we might quite soon see the MG badge more often.

A much larger version now takes pride of place on the newly styled front of the MG3, complete with bolder radiator grille. There's a bigger one on the back too, as MG emphasises those two famous initials.

This styling refresh gives the MG3 more in common with its two newer siblings, in the shape of GS and SZ models, both hitching a ride on the current SUV boom, with the ZS accounting for more of half total sales of the brand.

Inside the latest MG3 you'll find a new dashboard complete with clearer instruments and a touchscreen adding a spot of style in a spacious interior that belies the modest price asked for the car – which starts at £9,495 for an Explore model, slides through the £11,395 Excite and tops out with the Exclusive at £12,795.

There's a new dashboard inside

All versions have Bluetooth telephone and audio streaming and AUX/USB as standard, while Excite and Exclusive gain the eight inch colour touchscreen with Apple CarPlay (but no Android Auto), DAB radio and steering wheel audio controls. The Exclusive version adds a reversing camera with dynamic guidelines to help pop it into a tight parking space.

The entry level version costs £800 more than before but that's not likely to dampen sales – more than half of new MG3s will be in the dearest spec, so buyers evidently don't buy simply on cheapness.

What may tempt them is the new seven year or 80,000 mile warranty that comes with this latest version, showing faith in its longevity and transferable to a new owner if you decide to sell up and move on.

Under the bonnet beats a mildly upgraded

The newly styled front of the MG3, complete with bolder radiator grille and a large MG badge on the bonnet version of the previous 1.5 litre petrol engine, meeting the latest emissions regulations and capable of powering the car to 108mph and to 60mph in 10.4 seconds.

Those are unremarkable figures - along with tailpipe emissions of 140g/km and official average economy of 47.1mpg. Insurance in lowly groups seven or eight is more likely to impress.

So too does the way the MG3 drives on the British roads where prototypes spent many thousands of miles in development of the original model. It translates into a nicely restrained ride and enough response to steering input to make corners something to welcome.

A five-speed gearbox leaves you wanting a sixth ratio at motorway speeds and the engine never shows anything like enthusiasm if provoked. A 41.9mpg return on the dashboard display felt like a reasonable return though. At rest, the MG3 continues to impress with enough space inside for a quartet of grown ups and a boot capacity of 285 litres is no disgrace in the car's supermini class.

So, the latest MG3 takes the game on but only a little. It's obvious attractions perhaps centre more on price and warranty but it's a move in the right direction. Watch this space, as they say.

New lease of life for flagship NSX

Honda has given its flagship supercar a new lease of life for 2019, with an extra paint option, better chassis rigidity and more cabin customisation.

The new, eye-catching Thermal Orange Pearlescent joins the bodywork choices, while also being available as a finish on brake calipers for optional carbon ceramic discs. Other visual tweaks include the switch from a chrome upper front grille to a colour-matching piece, while mesh in the front and rear bumpers is painted gloss black.

Customers can now also opt for a full red leather interior or blue trimmings on Alcantara and leather combination upholstery.

It's not just aesthetic changes for the NSX, though. New, larger stabiliser bars improve chassis rigidity at the front and rear of the car by 26 per cent and 19 per cent respectively, while the rear hubs and control-arm toe link bushings have been beefed up to boost chassis responsiveness.

There have also been some software tweaks to improve the AWD system, electric power steering, stability assistance and active dampers.

Power hasn't been increased, but the engine does get some minor fettling with upgraded injectors, turbocharger tweaks and a new particulate filter to ensure the NSX complies with the Euro 6d-TEMP emissions standard.

The updated Honda NSX is expected to go on sale early in 2019, with a limited allocation coming to the UK. Pricing has yet to be revealed.

Aston Martin's pumped up Grand Tourer so engaging

By Ian Donaldson

You can find about almost everything about a new Aston Martin from the company's elegant and deeply detailed website – except the price of the lovely car you're building on your computer screen.

For that you're politely asked to submit the imagined car to the dealer of your choice – and they'll be in touch to discuss the next steps.

Which, in the case of the car you see here today will involve a cheque for at least £201,995, unless you're tempted by a gold finish for the oil filler cap or embroidered Aston Martin badges on the seat headrests.

They – and a bewildering host of other finishing touches – will push the final bill (an unspecified amount) further skyward.

Which, for the few very lucky people able to afford an Aston Martin won't matter a jot. They've worked hard (or inherited well) and can have the car of their dreams built just for them.

Admire

The motoring world would, truly, be a duller place if we couldn't admire the occasional Aston Martin growling past us on the motorway or – more likely – edging oh-so carefully into a parking space outside a swanky hotel.

The car we're admiring right now is the company's DB11 grand tourer in its most pumped up form and designed to make an already very fast car still more engaging for keener drivers with an empty, sweeping

Designed to make an already very fast car still more engaging for keener drivers road in front of them.

So, taking the £157,900 DB11 as a starting point the chaps at Aston Martin have gained an extra 30bhp from its turbocharged 5.2 litre V12 engine, the resultant 630bhp enough for a 208mph top speed and 0-62mph in 3.7 seconds.

That makes this DB11 AMR (for Aston Martin Racing) the fastest model in the company's current production range, although to be honest the lesser version's 187mph and 4.1 seconds to 62mph scarcely seem lacking.

Still, there will always be drivers with deep pockets who lust after the fastest they can find and for which the £174,995 asked of the DB11 AMR is hardly a trip hazard, let alone a stumbling block.

Indeed for the deepest pockets there's an even dearer temptation. No quicker, it's true, but the £201,995 bottom line brings you one of only 100 AMR Signature Editions available worldwide and standing out in any crowd thanks to vivid lime yellow stripes on its Stirling Green bodywork.

That stripe continues in narrower form into the cockpit where it enlivens the backs of the front seats. The DB11 comes with a couple of perches in the rear, but surely more aimed at extra Gucci shopping trip conquests than people.

There are also more restrained touches of delicious carbon fibre outside and in, all of them helping produce the one reaction from DB11 first timers that tells Aston Martin they've hit the very expensive nail on its gold plated head – 'wow!'

Stir that epic engine room into action and the wows come thick and fast and with enough deep throated intent to clear the way out of a crowded Silverstone infield as the car headed for some public road action.

Where it surprised instantly with the way it tackled some awful roads (the councils are cash strapped, you may have read) with a cushioned firmness not expected from suspension carefully adjusted to its new AMR role.

The stab of a steering wheel button firmed it instantly but the car felt better in softer mode.

Prod another button and the eight speed automatic gearbox sharpens up its act and the big exhaust pipes emit encouraging pops and crackles.

Huge specially developed tyres on massive 20ins alloy wheels mean a driver's courage runs out way before the car's capabilities on public roads but make this big and heavy car (weightier and wider than a Range Rover Evoque) a confident steer at more sensible speeds.

At which you'll have time to admire the goodies that a DB11 price tag brings in tow, from 360 degree surround cameras and Caithness leather trim to carbon bonnet blades and a storage bin between the seats with a motorised sliding opening, lest you expend too much energy doing it yourself.

A trip computer reading of 22.9mpg after a morning's canter will prove no disincentive to a potential owner, more bothered with how often the 78 litre fuel tank will need filling.

Jaguar Classic has all-electric E-Type Zero in the pipeline

Jaguar Classic will build production examples of the all-electric E-Type Zero, it has been confirmed.

The all-electric version of the 1960s classic made its debut as a concept at the Jaguar Land Rover Tech Fest in September 2017 and a newer version will be unveiled at Monterey Car Week, which is currently taking place.

Using the latest cutting-edge technology from the Jaguar I-Pace, Jaguar Classic will restore old E-Types and convert them to electric power at its Classic Works facility in Coventry.

People who own E-Types can also take their cars to have them retrofitted with the electric motor. To avoid any perceived automotive sacrilege, though, Jaguar has said the process will be fully reversible.

There are no pricing or spec details for the production version of the E-Type Zero yet, but the concept version is powered by a 40kWh battery and has a range in excess of 170 miles, while recharging takes six to seven hours.

This is mated to a single-speed reduction gearbox. Jaguar Classic also says the Zero has better performance than the original E-Type, with a quicker acceleration, although no figures have been given yet.

Changes other than the powertrain include LED headlights and a touchscreen infotainment system.

Tim Hannig, director of Jaguar Land Rover Classic, said: "We've been overwhelmed by the positive reaction to the Jaguar E-Type Zero concept."

Future-proofing the enjoyment of classic car ownership is a major stepping stone for Jaguar Classic. E-Type Zero showcases the incredible heritage of the E-Type and expertise and craftsmanship at Classic Works, while demonstrating Jaguar Land Rover's dedication to creating zero-emission vehicles across every part of the business, including Jaguar Classic."

Richard Cox in batting action

Cox declares after an innings to remember

IT HAS spanned five decades, more than 850 matches, included countless silverware and involved some of the most famous names in cricket.

Now, 44 years after making his debut at the age of 12, Richard Cox has decided to declare his Birmingham League playing career finished.

Cox, who was the league's longest-serving player, took to the field for the final time recently for a second XI match between Halesowen and West Bromwich Dartmouth, the two clubs with whom he hoisted a host of trophies.

"It felt like now is the right time. You can't go on forever," said Cox. "There are a number of factors. I had a pretty nasty car accident last winter and 50 overs in the field was already becoming quite a strain. "I'd noted when this fixture was scheduled when I'd made up my mind. I didn't say anything about it. I guess I just wanted to go out on my own terms."

Passion

Cricket has been a 24-7 existence for Cox, both as a player and in the many roles he has held as an administrator. But the sport has been less a hobby, or even a job – and more a religion.

The passion he holds for the game still burns as brightly as it did when he first set foot inside Edgbaston cricket ground as a seven-year-old boy.

Cox's father Trevor, who both played and umpired, was a major influence. "It was dad who got me into it, he just loved the game," he said. "I've often asked why I've played for so long. I'm guessing most people, having worked in the sport from Monday to Friday, would want their weekends off.

"But it's because my father ingrained in me this deep love for the game, which will be with me until I'm no longer here. The Birmingham League has and always will be part of my world.

"When I was a young boy I lived for it. I couldn't wait to get the Express & Star on a Monday night to read the reports and scorecards – and then the Friday edition for all the previews. It was a religion to me."

Cox made his first forays as a youth player with south Birmingham club Old Edwardians, before making the move to Dartmouth, where he made his league bow in a second XI clash with Warwickshire Colts. "It was a case of being in the right place at the right time," he said. "Someone dropped out and I was called up."

Cox would go on to spend the next 25 years at Sandwell Park, 10 as captain of the first XI. After a season at Harborne, he then began an 18-year stint at Halesowen, where he captained the team to the 2002 Premier Division title in remarkable circumstances.

"I remember being called up on the Friday by David Manning, the club's head of cricket," recalls Cox. "He said: 'We are 18 points off the relegation zone and sinking fast. I need you to take over the captaincy and try and keep us up.' Five weeks and six games later we'd won the league!"

Cox had already tasted league glory at Dartmouth nine years previously, while he was part of the team which won the knockout cup six years on the spin and reached the National Knockout final at Lord's in 1993, where they lost to league rivals Old Hill.

What sticks out above the trophies, however, are the endless anecdotes and memories.

In 1999, Cox was part of the Dartmouth team which played Smethwick when Wasim Akram, then Pakistan captain, made his debut in front of 3,000 spectators. He was at the non-striker's end when Akram delivered the ball which left team-mate Robert Fenton with a broken jaw.

"I spent a week with the bowling machine at Edgbaston cranked up to 90mph to give myself a chance," Cox recalls. "But nothing compared to facing him in real life – he came round the wicket from behind the umpire often with the ball covered up by his right hand in the run up so you couldn't detect which way it would swing. It was a guessing game.

"He then resorted to bouncing people. Robert had his jaw broken and I think his toe as well. It was an honour to be out there."

Cox counts his match-saving 44 not out, compiled over more than 40 overs in the middle, as among his most memorable innings, along with an unbeaten 55 for the league select XI against a Warwickshire attack featuring Allan Donald, Gladstone Small and Tim Munton.

He's had some illustrious team-mates too. Cox regards former Zimbabwe Test stars Dave Houghton and Andy Flower as the best two he ever played alongside.

Flower, Dartmouth's overseas player in 1994 and 1995, went on to manage and coach England.

"Andy was one of the great innovators," says Cox.

"I have never known a player prepared to be so hard on themselves. He was relentless in his pursuit of success. I've been lucky to have played alongside some fantastic cricketers. There are simply too many to mention, so many unsung heroes.

Glorious

"The late 1980s and early 1990s, in particular, was a glorious time to be involved in Birmingham League cricket. The competition was fierce but played in the right manner. You had so many good overseas players and county players."

It isn't merely on the field Cox has left an impression. His career off the field would make a decent book in itself.

Currently the head of West Midlands region for the ECB, a role in which he oversees five county boards, his previous jobs have included academy manager at Warwickshire, general manager of Shropshire, while he even had a stint as chief executive of the Netherlands cricket.

"There's an old saying if you can find a job which is your hobby, you'll never work a day in your life," adds Cox. "I guess that sums it up for me."

"My current job with the ECB is based at Edgbaston. I still drive in through the gates every morning with the same enthusiasm I had as a seven-year-old boy, walking through them for the first time. I'm still in awe of the place."

Ceesay poised for move to Seasiders

A FORMER Black Country non-league footballer is set to follow in the footsteps of Curtis Tilt by signing for League One side Blackpool.

Winger Yusifu Ceesay, 23, was playing for Smethwick Rangers in the West Midlands Premier Division – seven levels below League One – barely two years ago.

He has also turned out for Willenhall-based outfit Sporting Khalsa before joining Alvechurch earlier this summer.

Ceesay, who played in Spain before coming to England, impressed for Blackpool in a friendly and the Bloomfield Road side are set to offer him a two-year deal.

He would not be the first product of West Midlands non-league to join Blackpool. Former Gornal and Halesowen centre-half Tilt, a former JCB driver from Walsall, joined last summer and has since become one of the division's finest defenders.

Ashes hero Vaughan in sporting dinner

ASHES winning former England captain Michael Vaughan and ex-chairman of selectors Geoff Miller are special guests at a sportsman's dinner in Walsall next month.

Former Yorkshire batsman Vaughan, aged 43, captained England for 51 of his 82 Tests and masterminded the 2005 Ashes win, the first since 1986/87. He scored 5,719 Test runs at an average of more than 41, scoring 18 100s and the same number of half-centuries, before retiring through injury in 1999. He is now a pundit and has also taken part in Strictly Come Dancing.

Miller, who played first class cricket for Derbyshire and Essex, played 34 Tests for England before becoming a national selector.

The two will be appearing in a fundraiser on behalf of Rushall at Walsall's Banks's Stadium on Thursday, October 11.

Tickets are £45 each or £425 for a table of 10 and are available from Route 39 on 01902 244220.

Neal aims to bounce back at Silverstone

STOURBRIDGE racer Matt Neal has it all to do next weekend with his hopes of a fourth British Touring Car Championship title all but over.

Neal slipped 92 points behind series leader Colin Turkington following the latest round at Knockhill.

Hamstrung by having to carry 39kg of success ballast in both qualifying and race one, Neal lined up a frustrated 21st on the closely-contested grid before being removed from contention at mid-distance of race one by an errant rival.

From that point, it became an exercise in damage limitation, and the three-time champion rose to 17th in race two and a points-scoring 15th in the finale. He is now ninth in the drivers' standings ahead of the remaining two outings at Silverstone (September 15/16) and Brands Hatch GP (September 29/30).

"You need a bit of luck in the BTCC, and that's clearly been lacking but we'll be lighter going to Silverstone and we will bounce back."

Stylish Forde strike enough for Glassboys

STOURBRIDGE produced the perfect away performance in a 1-0 Evo-Stik Southern Premier Division Central victory at King's Lynn – but boss Gary Hackett says it could have been more convincing.

Aaron Forde's stylish strike late in the first half proved decisive at The Walks, handing Hackett the perfect response to a 6-4 defeat at Coalville Town seven days earlier.

The Glassboys had fought back with a dogged 1-1 No.9 derby draw with Halesowen Town in midweek and a more complete performance in Norfolk on Saturday left the manager happier.

"We have had a good reaction to the Coalville match, working very hard and conceding just the one in the two games since," said Hackett.

"It was a thoroughly-deserved 1-0 victory and a great shift from everyone out there. There are big expectations at King's Lynn and we knew that if we could keep them quiet the fans would get on their backs. That was exactly how it turned out. You could see the frustration from the fans and players.

"They have a good squad but I know what it is like myself, when things aren't going for you everything becomes more difficult. To be fair, though, we were very polished and crisp up front. It could have been more than the one."

On Forde's contribution, Hackett added: "For someone of Aaron's ability he should probably score a few more. We let him off the leash and, I must say, his goal was top drawer."

Veteran defender grabs injury time equaliser for Yeltz

Halesowen Town 1 St Neots Town 1
VETERAN defender Asa Charlton rescued a point for Yeltz in the final seconds of injury time to grab a point in a disappointing home performance that lacked invention.

It was the side from Cambridgeshire who dominated the first half with Halesowen creating only one chance.

Charlton cleared off the line in the tenth minute and a 13th minute corner was somehow cleared. Dion Sembie-Ferris's low shot in the 18th minute was kept out by Platt. But Halesowen did go close to opening the scoring when Lee Hughes' 33rd minute shot was sliced against his own cross-bar by Harry O'Malley with Ahmed Ali blazing the rebound high over. The Saints deservedly went ahead after 58 minutes when Claudio Ofusa's left-wing cross sailed straight into the top corner.

The game seemed to be drifting to a grim home defeat after James Roberts hit the post in the 80th minute. But in added time Charlton rose highest at the far post to head home an unlikely equaliser from a corner.

Stourbridge in winner-takes-all clash

STOURBRIDGE could lift the Birmingham League division three title after the long-time leaders lost by four wickets to Pelsall. The crown will go to whoever wins the battle of the top two, Stourbridge or Rugby, at Webb Ellis Road on Saturday.

Pelsall's Todd Henderson took 3-32 as Stourbridge were routed for 75 but in reply were made to work hard for their win by Dan Such, who took 5-30 as Pelsall lost six wickets before they reached their target.

Meanwhile, Rugby cruised to a 132-run win over Milford Hall.

Himley require 10 points from their last two matches to ensure survival from the Birmingham league Division One. Kidderminster were promoted to the Premier and look likely to be joined by Bridgnorth.

Opener Steve Leach (98) and Jack Edwards (48) gave the Shifnal innings a great start against Himley with a partnership of 106 providing the platform for a final total of 276-8. Stuart Wedge took 4-39 for Himley, given a flying start by Oliver Westbury (60) and Greg Wright (40) with a 105 opening stand. Callum Lea top scored with 66 but they finished six runs short on 270-8.

Wolverhampton look destined for relegation from the Premier after a morale-sapping defeat to West Bromwich Dartmouth. Kadeer Ali hit 65 in a Dartmouth total of 215 with his Staffs teammate Zen Malik spinning his way to 5-40 for Wolverhampton. Ali took 4-27 and Sultan Afsal took 3-30 as Wolverhampton were dismissed for 118.

HALES HOPES FIZZLE OUT

HALESOWEN'S promotion chances all but disappeared with a 58-run home defeat to Barnards Green.

Skipper Ryan Tongue scored a superb unbeaten 135 from 146 balls for the victors.

Charlie Hartley took three for 64 as Barnards Green reached 241 for seven at the close. Despite 44 from Jamie Harris and 41 from Alexei Kervezee, Halesowen fell well short on 183 all out with four for 39 for Mahaaz Ahmed and three for 16 for Raheem Edavalath.

Frustrated captain Kervezee said: "We probably let them get 20 too many, which has been a little bit of the story of our season. When bowling first and then when chasing down the total, you always need to get off to a solid start and build the reply around someone who goes on and gets 80 plus. We didn't manage to do that and came up short."

Survival

"In the last two games we are playing Wellington and Himley and we simply have to finish off with a flourish."

"They are both fighting for survival and will want to win badly and we will be looking to see who wants to win badly for our club as well."

In the second team game at Barnard Green the opposition posted 313-5 with only leg spinner Archie Reeves (3-34) able to put the brakes on the opposition batsmen.

In reply Tom Williams (65) and Jack Roberson (68) set up a base to win the game but in the end fell 49 runs short with eight overs remaining, leaving them sixth in the table.

The third and fourth teams both had comfortable wins over Himley in the Worcestershire Cricket League. The third team remain in the hunt for the title whilst the fourth team are boosted into mid table with two games to go thanks to Rithek Sirpal (3-21) followed by Amardeep Singh (42), Haseeb Arif (38*) and Sam Preece (32*) knocking off Himley's 112 all out.

Pair race towards another title

ANOTHER double class win and a 10th place finish overall – even a return to Oulton Park for the first time in two years could not stop Double Two Racing seemingly riding their way to another title.

The Black Country pairing of Pete Wright and Martyn Siviter made the most of a bone-dry Cheshire track during qualifying to set themselves up for the win. Siviter went out first, before race partner Wright, from Tivdale put the team first in Club 600 and National class and 11th overall. A lap of 1:47.890 was the fastest time on a 600cc bike all weekend.

Wright went out again and moved up to fifth, then with consistent laps of 1:48, the team slotted into first in the Club 600 and national classes but began hitting traffic, losing time. The Pertemps team and rivals sliced their way through before the 'limited adhesion' flags came out due to light rain.

A slick pit stop sent Siviter out but the team had to contend with arm pump. The transponder was swapped back to Martyn's bike and he brought it home.

Meanwhile Chris Ashfield, 24, from Kinver, is closing in on the Minitwins class title.

Welborn in running for repeat show

JASON Welborn is confident of 'repeat' rather than 'revenge' ahead of his eagerly-awaited British Middleweight Title rematch with Tommy Langford this weekend.

Welborn outgunned Langford in a British Boxing Board of Control nominated Fight of the Year contender back in May at Walsall Town Hall. Langford went in to that first bout as champion and clear favourite with Welborn out at 7/1 with the bookies. Those odds were turned on their head though as the WBC International Silver Champion recorded a deserved split-decision victory.

Welborn v Langford II takes place on the undercard of Amir Khan versus Samuel Vargas at the Arena Birmingham, live on Sky Sports on Saturday.

It's a fight that threatens to steal the show and 32 year-old Welborn, from Rowley Regis, is in confident mood.

"I am feeling brilliant and I can't wait to get back in there," he told beb-promotions.com.

"It was one of those fights where I wanted to do again, so to be able to do so live on Sky Sports, in a big arena, is perfect for us both."

As well as Khan versus Vargas and Welborn v Langford II, there is a packed undercard this weekend.

Ryan Kelly defends the Midlands Area Super-Welterweight title he won in May against unbeaten Dordon man Kelcie Ball. Stourbridge banger Sam Eggington and Super-Bantamweight star Gamal Yafai also appear on the bill.

Carling kit deal to refresh Rangers

A QUARTET of football teams have received new strips as part of a sponsorship deal.

Black Country Rangers, Fusion, Ladies and Veterans – all under the Black Country FC banner – have been provided fresh kits by Carling.

Wolverhampton Sunday League Division Four outfit Fusion were set up in 2015 and welcome LGBT players.

Rangers play in the West Midlands Premier and sit top of the table after six games. The ladies are in the Staffordshire Girls and Ladies League, and the Veterans in the Staffordshire Veterans League.
